Before you start

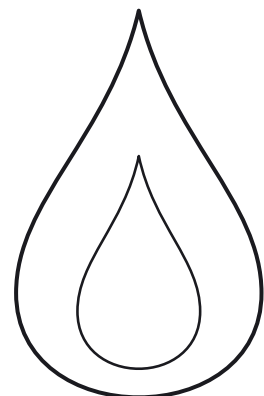

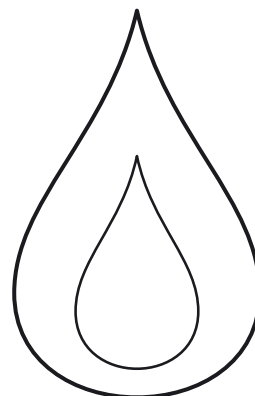

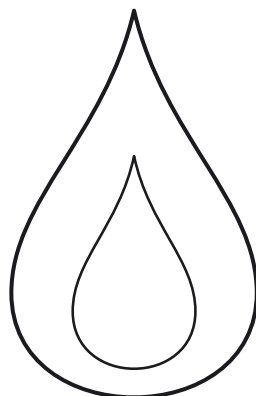

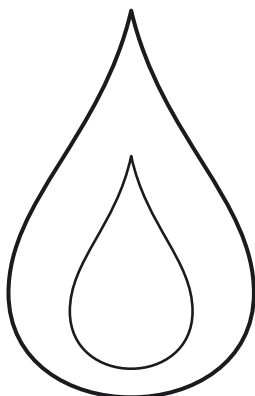

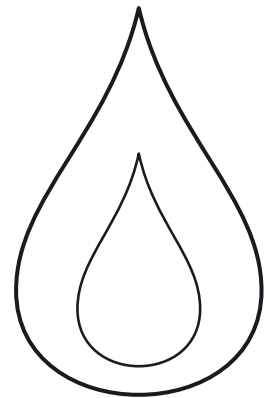

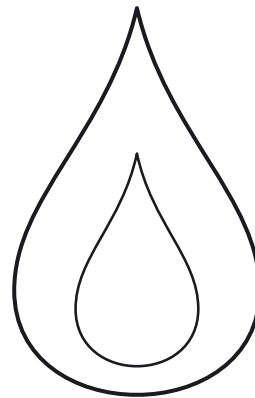

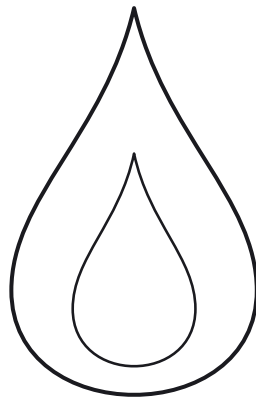

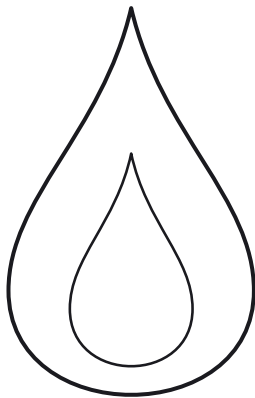

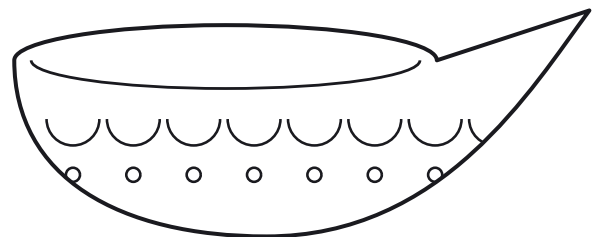

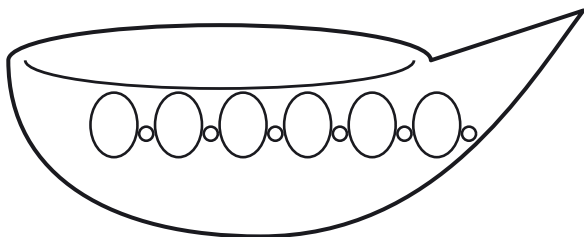

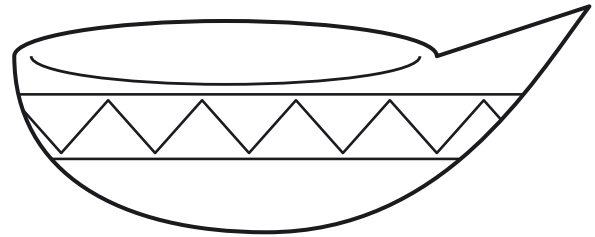

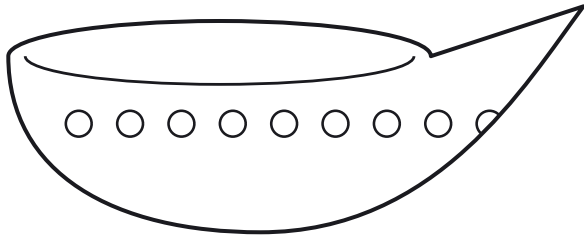

- 1 Print at actual size (100%), not "fit to page", so the pieces come out the right size.
- 2 Solid lines are for cutting. Dashed lines are for folding. Grey tabs get the glue.
- 3 Card stock works best for the kandil lantern and the greeting card.
- 4 Use battery LED tea lights only. Never put a real flame near paper or a paper craft.

Prints on US Letter and A4. Instructions for each craft are on craftifybud.com.

Diya Shapes and Paper Flames

Color, cut out, and glue a flame on top of each diya

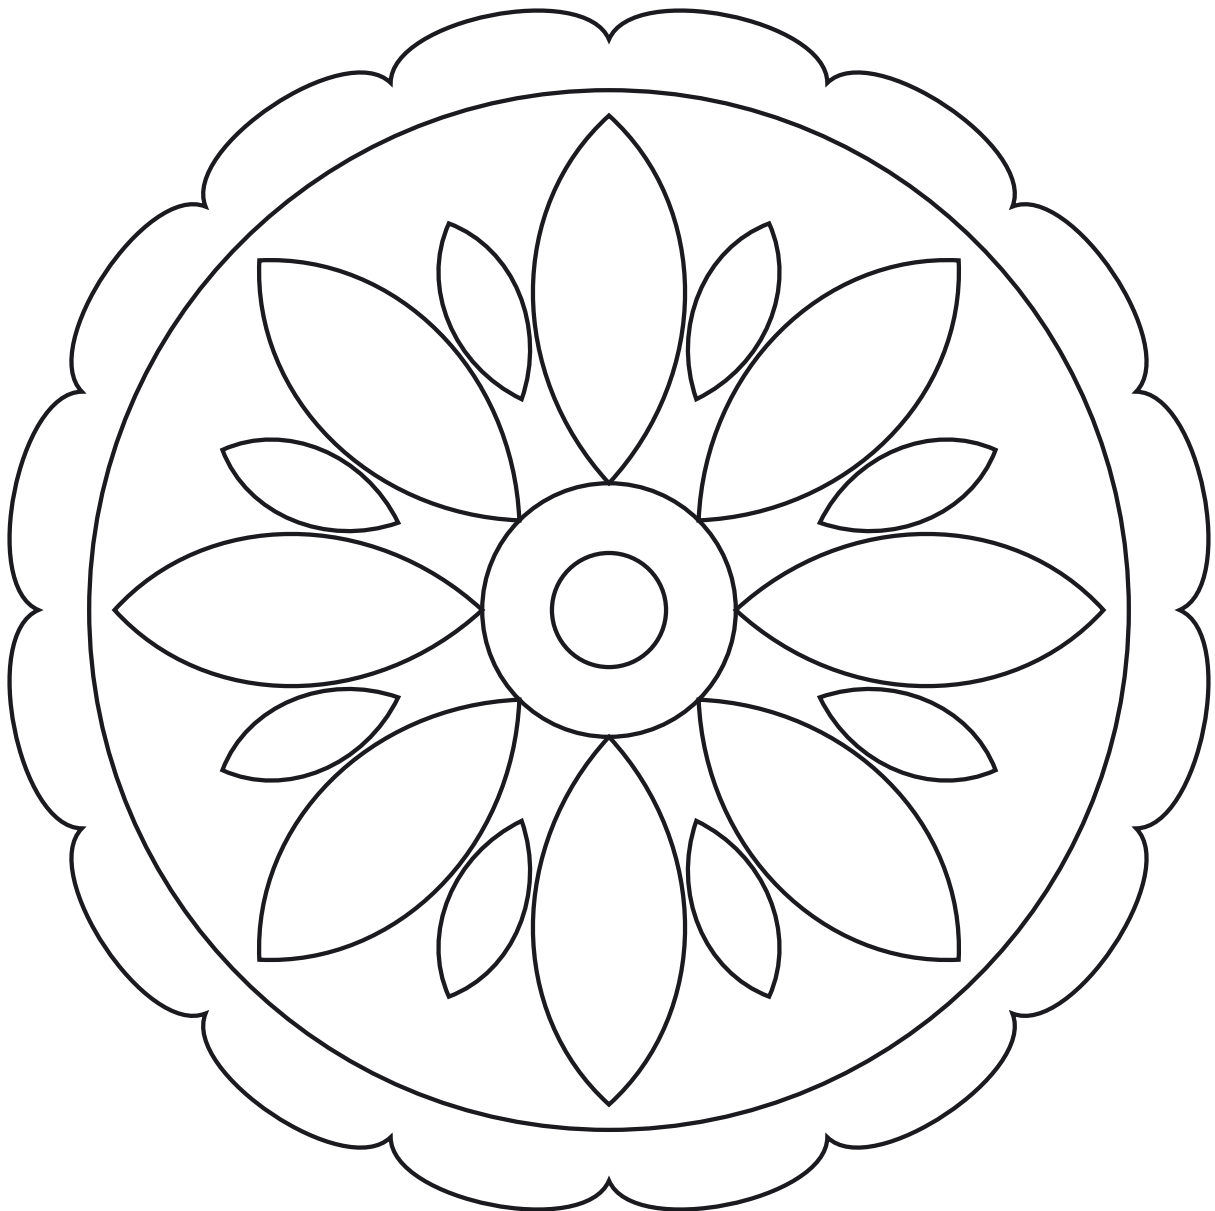

Cut along the solid lines. Make one diya each, plus spare flames. Paper flames only.

Simple Rangoli

Color it in or cover it with dot stickers

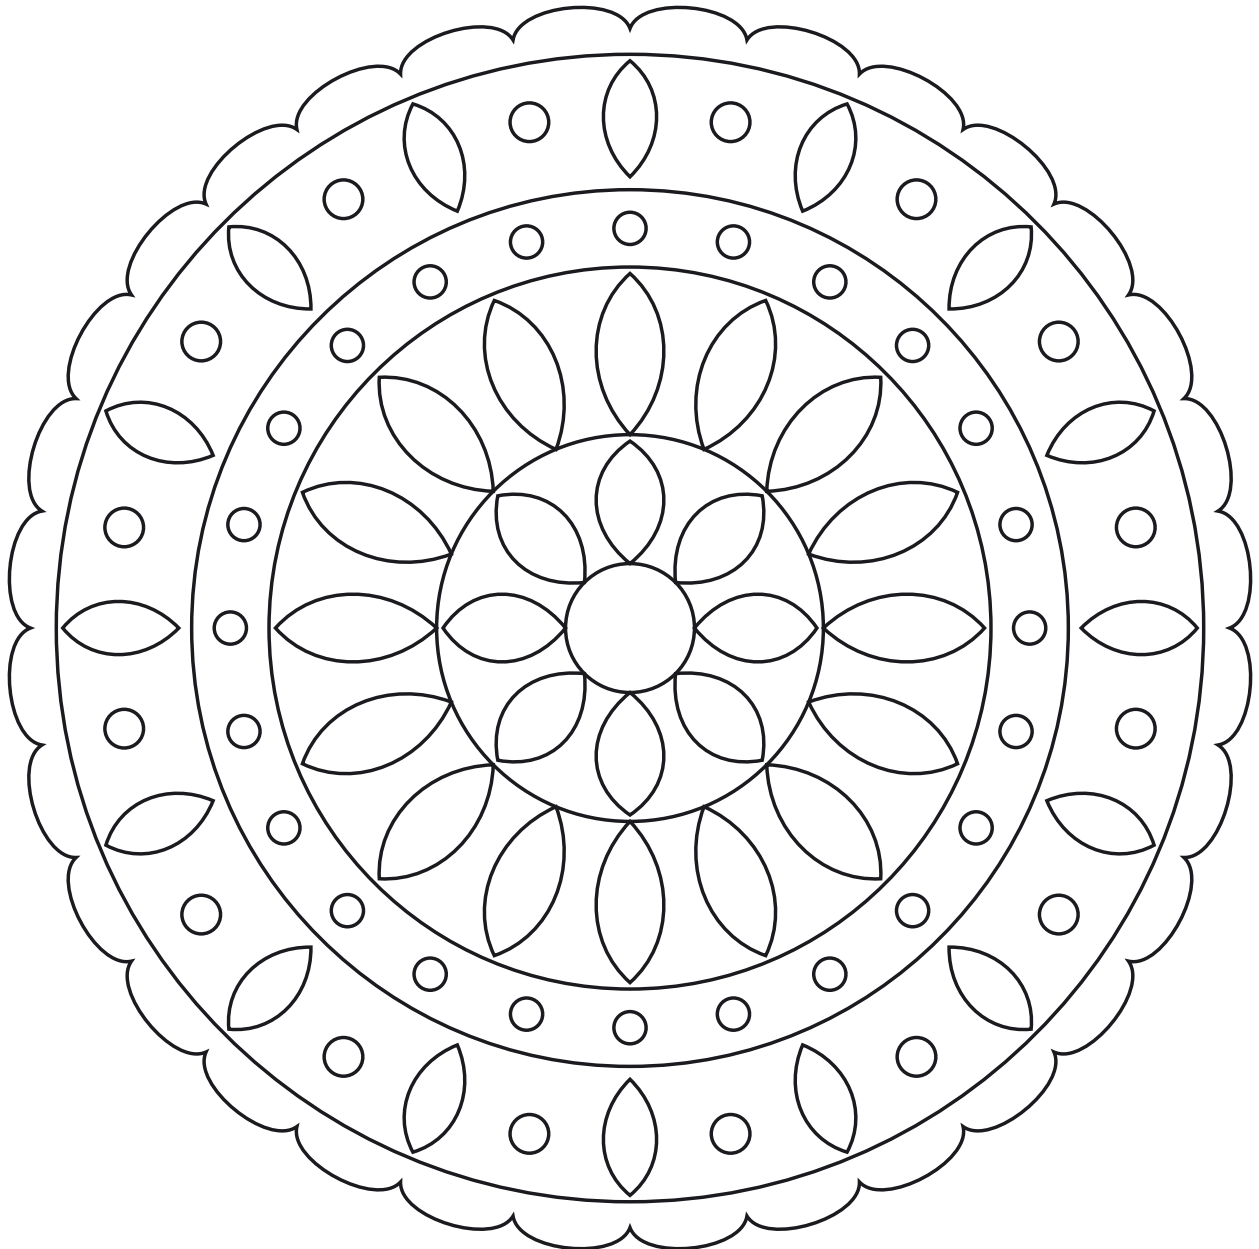

Big spaces for little hands. Crayons, markers or round stickers all work.

Detailed Rangoli

Glue on colored rice one section at a time, or color it in

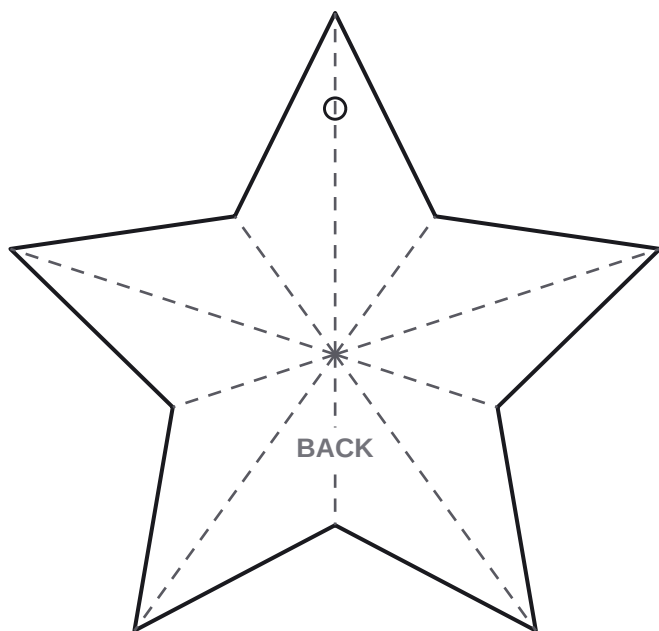

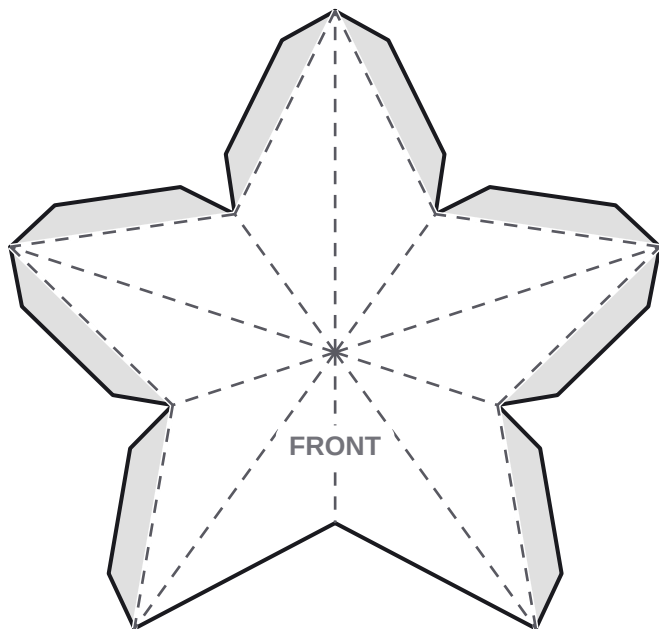

Work on a tray. Spread glue inside one section, sprinkle rice, tip off the extra, then the next.

Kandil Star Lantern

Card stock works best · LED tea light only

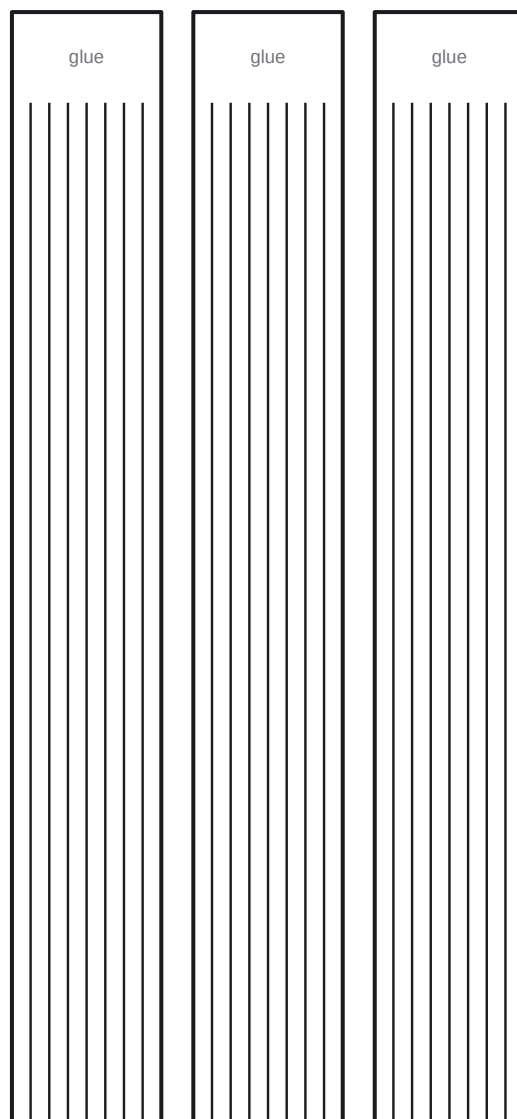

How to make it

1. Cut out both stars, the grey tabs too.
2. Fold every dashed line from the middle. Tips fold one way, inner corners the other, so each star puffs up.
3. Fold the grey tabs in. Glue them to the inside edges of the BACK star.
4. The bottom two edges have no tabs. Leave that gap open.
5. Tie string through the hole and hang it. Put an LED tea light below the gap.

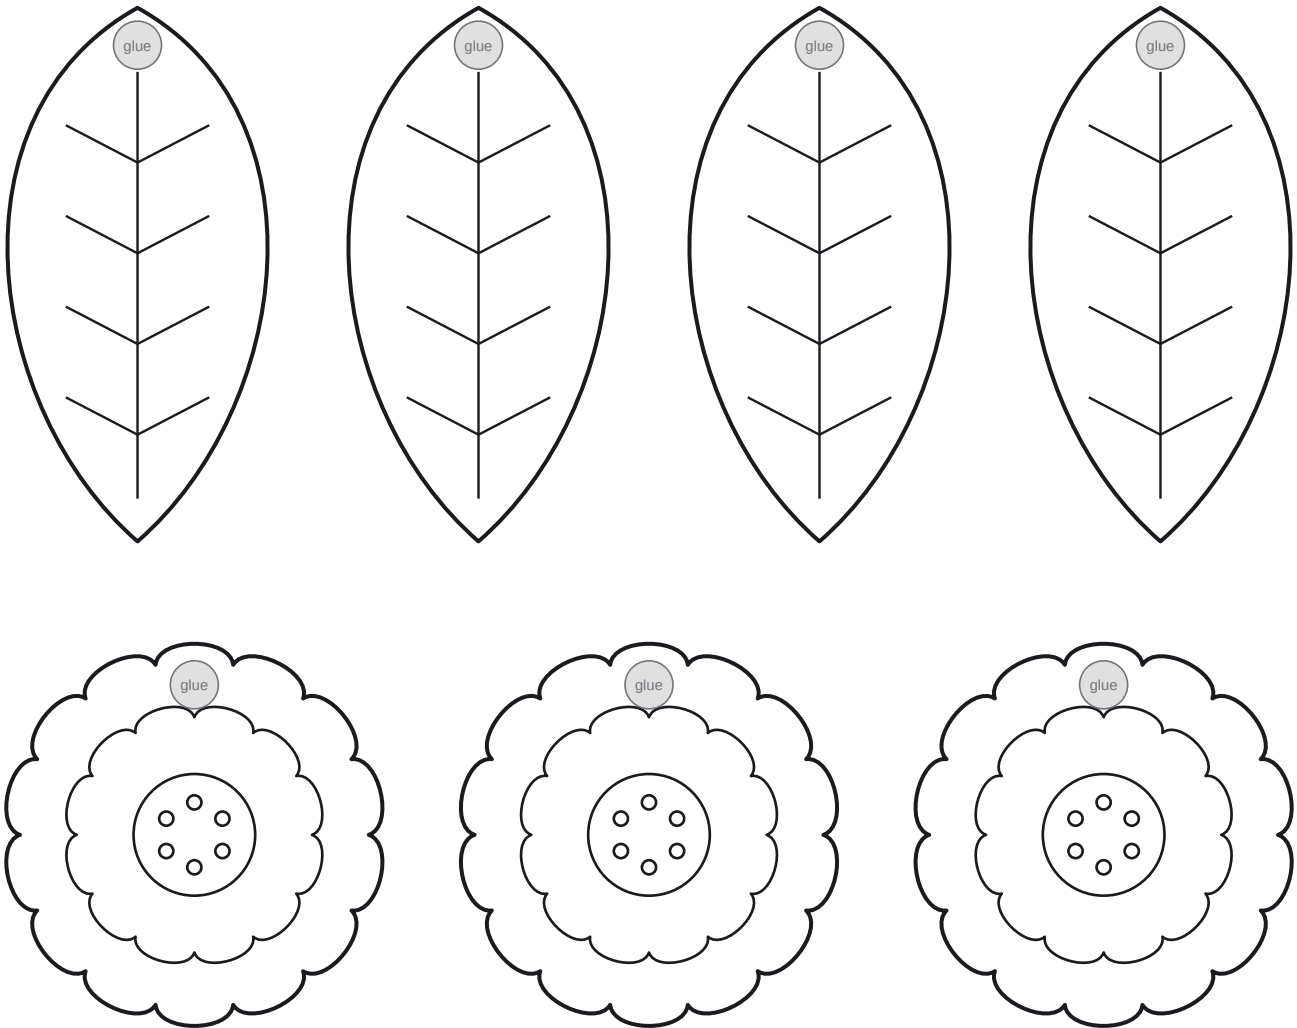

Tassels

Cut the short lines for a fringe, roll it up, glue it under a star point.

Toran Leaves and Marigolds

Color, cut out, and glue along a ribbon for your door

Need more? Print this page twice. A good toran has leaves and flowers taking turns:

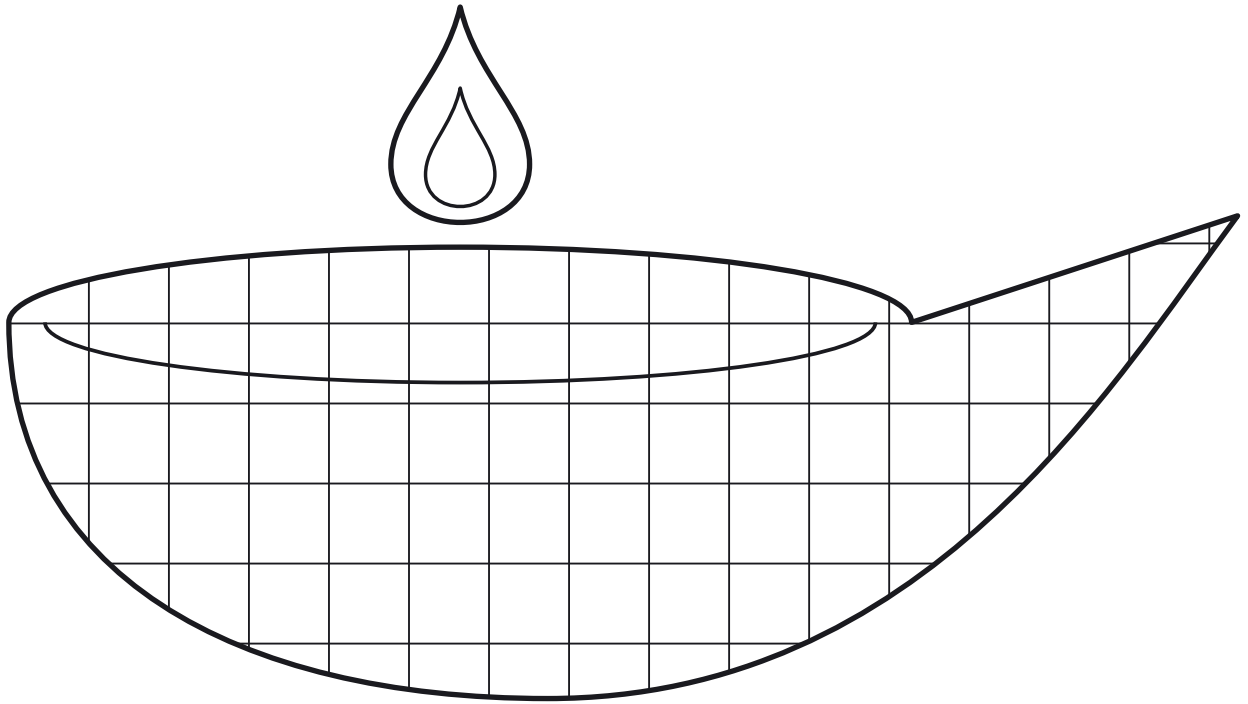

Glue each piece to a ribbon or a long strip of card at the grey glue spot.

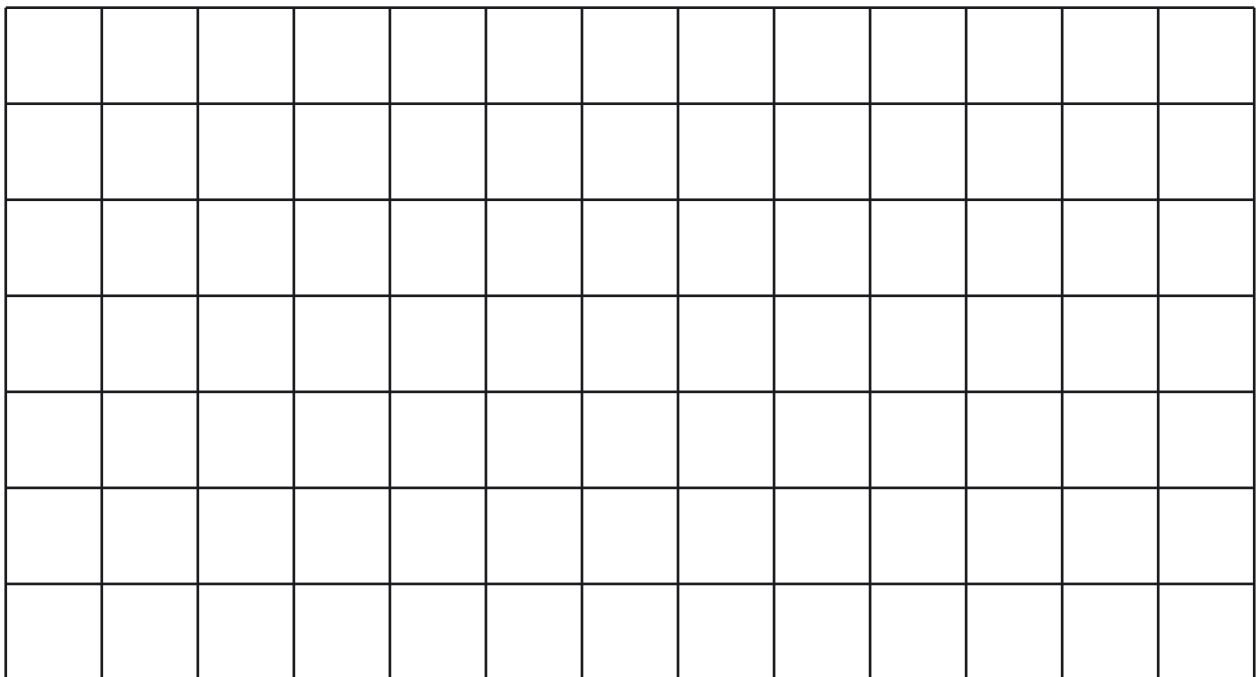

Mosaic Diya

Glue small squares of paper inside the tiles

No paper scraps? Color these squares in lots of colors, then cut them apart.

Older kids: try a pattern, like warm colors on the diya and yellow and orange on the flame.

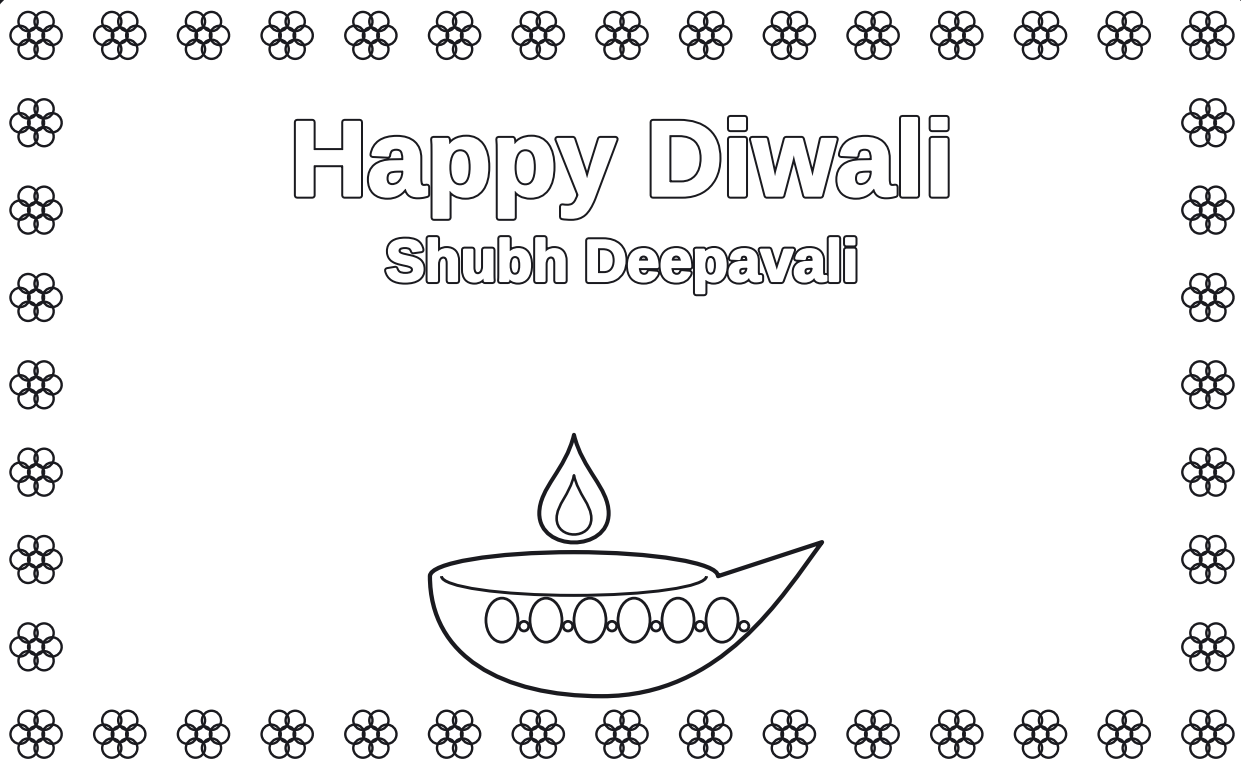

Diwali Greeting Card

Cut along the outside, fold on the dashed line, write inside
